11:17:06 From Cintia Bentes Rodrigues da Costa to Everyone:
Likewise, @Adriana and Bonnie! ❤️🤔

11:17:17 From shirley riva to Host and Panelists:
this applies to older persons i terms of agency

11:17:44 From shirley riva to Host and Panelists:
they do not care about
staff.....

11:18:08 From shirley riva to Host and Panelists:
in terms of unpaid work etc

11:18:22 From Chelsea Barranger to Everyone:
have policy about EDI and training at work but when planning
events not everyone considers basic food accommodations (e.g., halal)
or non-Christina holidays.

11:18:48 From Noreen Yaqoob to Everyone:
Yes, I agree

11:18:49 From shirley riva to Host and Panelists:
have dTA for membership but nOT staff

11:19:14 From Teresa Milligan to Everyone:
I think many of my faculty define "care" very emotionally and traditionally. They do care about students, but tend toward the "tough love" method.

11:19:44 From Teresa Milligan to Everyone:
But they don't recognize it as "care" because it doesn't fit that traditional definition.

11:19:49 From Cintia Bentes Rodrigues da Costa to Everyone:
It seems organizations want to have diversity but faculty and staff don't know much about other cultures... We, "others", keep walking on eggshells...

11:19:56 From Noreen Yaqoob to Everyone:
Accomodating, Ramadhan for Muslim faculty and students especially during exam week. Eid Holidays!

11:20:06 From shirley riva to Host and Panelists:
Duty to accommodate 9DTA) Canada includes Unions

11:20:09 From Jen McParland to Everyone:
I think that some people struggle to empathise with people with invisible disabilities and offer support or care without being cynical or distrusting.

11:20:51 From Cintia Bentes Rodrigues da Costa to Everyone:
Exactly! There is no sense of belonging...

11:20:56 From Teresa Milligan to Everyone:
We just about closed our equity gap during the pandemic and I'm convinced it was because faculty were forced to turn off the
'tough love.'

11:21:24 From Bonnie Nicholas to Everyone:
It's frustrating when institutions say one thing and do
another – when their actions don't support their words.

11:21:32 From shirley riva to Host and Panelists:

invisible disabilities includes neuro-diversity

11:22:50 From Teresa Milligan to Everyone:
Thank you for taking time to finish that last part of the discussion, Maha.

11:24:46 From Anna Corbett to Everyone:
Yes! I love the open ended options to allow for autonomy and creativity

11:32:59 From Noreen Yaqoob to Everyone:
When we start teaching we don't have the knowledge of the educational background of the student taking the course. Which makes it really difficult to design a course before hand. I make changes and accommodate their needs during the course after understanding their needs. some of the students will not come up with the learning difficulties until the end of the course. Its a difficult situation when teaching advance courses.

11:35:02 From Sandy Guzman Foster to Everyone:
Ask students: what do they need from me to help them succeed in the class

11:35:07 From Laetitia Walbert to Everyone:
I design my language courses so that they talk 80% of the time

11:35:16 From Adriana Ojeda to Everyone:
I used to also do a pre-course survey similarly when I taught

11:35:30 From Anna Corbett to Everyone:
Create custom resource pages based on expressed needs

11:35:32 From Adriana Ojeda to Everyone:
Many appreciated the opportunity to share things with me

11:35:44 From Teresa Milligan to Everyone:
A lot of formative assessment is done in the context of their own experience

11:35:51 From Bonnie Nicholas to Everyone:
I ask students to record their names so I can pronounce them correctly and I make sure I know everyone's names (as a starting point).

11:36:03 From Reeshma Haji to Everyone:

Reserved a couple of weeks of class to cover topics that were students' choice.

11:36:17 From Cintia Bentes Rodrigues da Costa to Everyone:

When I was teaching EAL to adults, we had classes every day. I would use attendance time to ask a question about their interests, favourite things and I would use this information to create materials.

11:36:17 From Toni Thornton to Everyone:

An instructor I work with on an Indigenous Studies course does a Wampum String Exercise – an experiential activity with beads in different sections that symbolize different relationships, commitments, etc. He facilitates this online with students, and they really love it.

11:36:34 From Melanie Coughlin to Everyone:

Small groups working on a puzzle task within a google doc -- work for HyFlex with an asynchronous task section added

11:39:15 From Noreen Yaqoob to Everyone:

I do that

11:39:35 From Karen Fletcher to Everyone:

I like to ask students "Is oatmeal a soup? Why or why not?"

It doesn't require any personal information and usually generates discussion and laughter.

11:39:40 From Cintia Bentes Rodrigues da Costa to Everyone:

I don't know why my parents chose my name... 🤔

11:40:36 From Teresa Milligan to Everyone:

Great points -- if students have a choice, the trickiness lessens

11:40:51 From Sandy Guzman Foster to Everyone:

Before the first day of class, I ask students to send me a photo of something that is meaningful to them and put them in a slide show and on the first day we share why the photo was chosen, etc.

11:56:41 From Wendy Freeman to Everyone:
I always learn so much from you and other participants

11:56:46 From Yolande Heymans to Everyone:
Can we get the chat please. So many ideas were shared and I could not capture it all.

11:56:47 From Wendy Freeman to Everyone:
New contexts too.

11:56:51 From Susen Rabold to Everyone:
Ideas for warm ups. I'd like to make them language related since we have a lot of international students that speak English as second language. It would be nice to be able to include their native languages.

11:56:53 From Catharine Ozols to Everyone:

You've reinforced lots of things the I believe in

11:57:11 From Donna Ziegenfuss to Everyone:

Thank you so much! A great presentation.
